

In a joint venture between Anglia Ruskin University and Colchester Hospital University NHS Foundation Trust, the project is for the provision of a modern world class Laparoscopy Training facility at Colchester General Hospital. This project comprises the demolition of an existing villa and the construction of a new modern building in a style to reflect the remaining Georgian villas on either side.

G. Dolden & Associates have been involved as Project Managers from inception, through the design and specification of the works to obtaining competitive tenders. We are now working as the Project Managers for the works through to completion.
